Annual Charity Event A Success

You might have noticed that last weeks weather was somewhat less appealing than the usual sunshine, picture perfect weather that we Southern Californians typically enjoy. Not only was it cold and windy, but heavy rains made the week downright miserable. And yet, through all of the adverse weather conditions, the Brothers, Pledges, and Little Sigma's of the Sigma Chi Fraternity teeter-tottered to raise money for charity.

According to Curtis Bayer, public relations chair for Sigma Chi, the weather didn't dampen any spirits. "We've been doing the teeter-totter for three years now and it always gets real cold for us, but the rain is a bother. Try doing homework or having a conversation while going up and down with an umbrella in your hand. It's tough!"

The marathon, which began last Wednesday at noon, went for two straight days. The money generated through pledges from the campus and community, along with donations at the teeter totter, will benefit the Wallace Village for Children in Broomfield, Colorado. Wallace Village has been Sigma Chi's international service project for twenty years, and is designed to help children with physical and mental handicaps.

Over the past two years, the marathon here at Cal-State has raised about $2000 for the village. Sigma Chi has set this years goal at an incredible $3000.

"Our fund-raising goal this year exceeds the previous two years by quite a bit." Stated John McCann, the brother in charge of the event. "The Fraternity really got behind the marathon and collected good amounts in pledges. It looks pretty good."

Along with raising money for charity, and true to form, the Sigma Chi brothers were seen having good times around the clock, particularly during the cold nights. Little Sigma's, along with members of the Alpha Phi and AD Pi sororities, were on hand to keep the teeterers company. Hot chocolate, popcorn, doughnuts and pizza were provided by the ladies.

"This event could never be successful without the help of the other Greeks on campus." said Bayer. "Every year I'm always surprised at the support we receive. It really makes our guys feel good to have that support."

While the event is over now, according to the Brothers, the hard part is coming up. "We have to collect the donations pledged by people." said Randy Smith, treasurer of Sigma Chi. "It always takes a while to get all the money in. Our goal is to get the money to Wallace Village as quickly as possible."

With that in mind, the Sigma Chi members will be collecting donations during this week and next, and they ask that you have it available. The brothers also wish to thank everyone for their support in their efforts to help others.

EDITOR'S CORNER

Since I'm still recovering from turning the big 21 this weekend I don't have a lot to say this week. I do want to thank everyone for a great bash. Thanks to my friends this week may be a column filled with babble.

It's hard to believe the quarter is almost over. Midterms finally end and it seems like finals are right around the corner. That means those of us who may have been "socializing" more than we've been studying, should start hitting the books a little harder. Students may be spending more time in the library these next few weeks but there are still plenty of events coming up to occupy some of that rare free time. Dr. Joyce Brothers will be here tonight. Tomorrow night magician Lee Grabel will be in the student union. On December 3rd we have the opportunity to hear Jello Biafra, lead singer of the former group Dead Kennedy's, speak about first ammendment rights. Keep reading the paper for more information on Jello.

Has anyone noticed the new additions to the bathrooms in the student union? CSUSB now has condom machines. You can read more about it on the next page. It would be interesting to hear from you as students about the new additions.

Spring Break, to have or have not, seemed to be the hot issue from last week. But, fortunate for us, it seems like we'll still be having one next year so don't cancel those reservations for Florida yet.

That's about it for this week. Get a head start and study hard.

The Chronicle Policies

The Chronicle is partly funded by an annual allocation from the Associated Students to cover the cost of printing and expenses. The remainder of the funding is generated by the Chronicle itself. It is distributed free to students and the community. The Chronicle is published under the control of the CSUSB Media Commission. It is published weekly during the school year excluding quarter breaks and holidays - for a total of thirty (30) issues.

Advertising requests should be addressed or directed to the Advertising Manager or Business Manager at the address or number below. The Chronicle accepts advertising in good faith, but makes no warranty, and does not check advertised goods or services for validity. Story contributions from students and faculty are welcome. Copy deadlines are the Wednesday at 12:00 noon, preceding the date of publication.

Letters to the Editor must include the writer's name, address, phone number, and signature. All submitted copy must be typed, and double-spaced. Editorials and/or commentary that are unsigned represent the majority opinion artist, and not necessarily those of the Cal State Chronicle.

Commentary

Prophylactic Attack

by Chris Duva

Have you all noticed the newest addition to our campus? Yes, I'm talking about the condom dispensers that have been installed in both the male and female restrooms of the Student Union. For 50 cents anyone with the need or desire can purchase a condom from one of these machines. Students should be made aware of the fact, however, that condoms are available through the Health Center for 7 cents. So, if you are a student on a tight budget and are planning on having lots of sex you might be wise to check out the Health Center.

No doubt, installing a condom dispenser and promoting safe sex is a good idea. However, if we want to see a condom machine that's going to get some real use we should install one in the dormitories, right between the candy and soda machines. I could just see some drunk guy running down there at about 1:30 a.m. shoving quarters into the machine. Maybe we could even sponsor a National Red Condom Week. We could tie big red condoms around all the trees on campus and wear little red condoms pinned to our shirts that read "Say No To A.I.D.S."

But seriously, in the face of a rising A.I.D.S. epidemic and an overall heightened public awareness as to the need for safe sex, the installation of these machines is timely to say the least. As a matter of fact, surgeon general C. Everett Koop has stated that next to abstinence the use of a condom is the best way to prevent the spread of the A.I.D.S. virus. And who wants to chose abstinence?

Tourism Course Offered In Winter

Tourism is the largest industry in the world and in California. Opportunities are aplenty but only if you like to travel.

Starting in the Winter Qtr., the first Tourism course: "Meeting and Convention Management"—MKTG 590A, is being offered by Dr. Vroom. At the completion with a passing of 70%, the student earns a certificate issued by the American Hotel and Motel Association and is recognized world-wide.

For more information call Dr. Vroom at ext.7544 or leave word with the department secretary at ext.7711.

Free Financial Aid Planning Calendar Available Through The Scholarship Bank

Students in need of funding for the current and next academic terms were urged today to order a free financial aid planning calendar from The Scholarship Bank. This vital planner includes critical aid deadlines, addresses and phone numbers of aid sources and tips on applying for aid.

According to the director, Steve Danz, over $500 million is available in private aid to college students, and in many cases can cover up to 25 percent of a student's annual college costs. These funds are contributed by corporations, trade, civic and non-profit foundations. They are normally awarded on non-traditional basis, such as academic standing, college major, geographic preferences, and even on a student's willingness to undertake a special research project or enter a contest. Parental factors such as union, employer or military affiliation is also considered by some donors.

The Scholarship Bank works with financial aids offices throughout the U.S. to distribute information on the over 5,000 sources. Interested students may receive a computer-generated print-out of up to 65 sources of private financial aid that they appear specifically qualified to receive. According to the director, many sources are renewable annually and have an average value in excess of $1,000.

Students interested in receiving the free aid calendar and information on the scholarship programs should send a stamped, business-sized self-addressed envelope to The Scholarship Bank, 4626 N. Grand, Covina, CA 91724.

The Search for Bozo

(Los Angeles, CA)—While any number of major U.S. companies canvas college campuses for potential employee talent every year, there's a new—and most unusual company—making the rounds this year. The company, Larry Harmon Pictures Corporation. The job, Bozo the Clown. The pay, well, let's just say that a number of veteran television Bozos have become wealthy while toiling behind the greasepaint. The boss, the ever-energetic and charismatic Larry Harmon, television's original Bozo.

After 37 years on television, the "Bozo Show," emanating as it has from a number of U.S. cities, now reaches 22 million homes a day, and continues to grow in popularity. New Bozo TV productions are cropping up everywhere, including Hawaii, and some 140 new Bozo products go on sale next year. So, as "Bozomania" storms the country, so, too, do the Bozo talent scouts who are seeking "a new generation of Bozo talent" to staff local TV productions and promotion campaigns.

The darling of kids TV for over three decades, Bozo is the star of the world's longest-running children's show. His famous red bulbous nose and trademark orange hair are seen on television throughout the world, and some 183 individuals have portrayed the world's most famous clown around the globe. In 1966, with the help of Bozo's worldwide travels on behalf of UNICEF, the U.N.-sponsored organization received the Nobel Peace Prize, and Secretary General U Thant called Bozo "a true ambassador of the world."

Interested applicants should write: Larry Harmon Pictures Corp., 650 N. Bronson Av., Los Angeles, CA 90004, (213) 463-2331.

CSSA Opposes New Wage*Sub-Minimum Wage Proposed

by Robert McLaughlin

The latest in the minimum wage and sub-minimum wage battle is still up in the air. The assembly Labor Committee and Industrial Wage Commission Hearings presented their proposals on Thursday, October 29 with much opposition from the CSSA.

Though now satisfied with the raise to $4 an hour as opposed to the original $4.25 or $5./hr, the bulk of the Hearings concerned the proposed sub-minimum wage. The subminimum wage, which equals 85% of standard minimum wage, would affect all full time students under the age of 21 as well as all tipped employees, such as waitresses and bartenders.

At the meeting on the 29th the CSSA agreed to the validity of the $4. minimum wage, but opposed the sub-minimum wage altogether due to the discriminatory precedent that it sets.

The Industrial Wage Commission is consisted of five members including two from the labor force, 2 employers and one impartial member. The Commission brings proposals and ideas forward to the State Legislature, starting the legislative process. This topic of minimum wage will be presented to the Legislature on December 18th.

The IWC has the right to establish such a sub-minimum wage, but it has not been implemented before this point.

John Richardson, Legislative Director, who serves on the CSSA Board of Directors and is CSSA liaison to the Academic Senate, adamantly points out the flaws in such a proposal, and has many questions to ask. "With different rules of different campuses, who is to decide the definition of a full time student? Will the student's wage rise during Christmas vacation or Spring Break when they are no longer full time students? There is also a logistics disadvantage in that who will verify the student status of each and every employee?" There are no answers to these questions as of yet.

The sub-minimum wage will definitely set a precedent. It will open the doors to further actions in the future, such as a possible sub-minimum wage for all students, regardless of age.

Students and tipped employees have the most to fear. They will both receive a five cent raise verses a 65 cent raise, and there is no age limit set on tipped employees.

The sub-minimum wage change would have detrimental effects on low and middle income students who have to work to get through school. If the cost of living rises and they are exempt from the new proposed minimum wage they will suffer and hence be discriminated against in their pay.

The CSSA is aware of this discrimination and wants to mobilize the students on all 19 campuses to oppose the subminimum wage.

Richardson states that if a student opposes the sub-minimum wage, they should hand write a letter. "People don't realize the effect a letter can have. It WILL make a difference!"

Students opposed to the sub-minimum wage proposal can express their views by writing to their local Assemblymen and Senators for their area or by writing to:

Assembly Labor and Employment Committee
Sacramento, CA 95814

All Cal State Students With I.D.*Pharmacy Services Available

All students currently enrolled at California State University, San Bernardino, who possess a validated student I.D. card, may use pharmacy services. This student I.D. card must be presented before any services will be given. A registered pharmacist is available from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

The on campus pharmacy offers three basic services. The pharmacy will fill prescriptions written by the Student Health Services physicians. Under most circumstances, prescriptions written by an outside physician will be filled. Outside prescriptions cannot be called in by the physician's office. The pharmacy also stocks approximately one hundred over-the-counter medications for the convenience of the students.

At your request, the pharmacist will provide the current price on any prescription. You may request price information in person or by telephone. The Student Health Services Pharmacy is able to maintain reasonable prices by purchasing through a special state contract. The services provided by this pharmacy, in addition to professional prescription dispensing and professional consultation, include maintaining personal medication records, dispensing health services information, and providing emergency prescription service. Prescription delivery, compounded prescription service is also available. Please contact the Health Center for further information.

Openings For Student Services Committee Members:

Must be available 2-4 hours a week. Must have a commitment to see that the students of this campus have available to them services which will help them have a successful university experience. Fill out an application in A.S. Office. For more information contact Tami Wollerton, Student Services Chair.

UPDATE: THE STUDENT VOICE IS HEARD

After a unified show of support by the students the University Administration has reconsidered its proposal to axe Spring Break

Associated Students gives special recognition to all clubs

Activist Critic of Nuclear Power Speaks at Cal State

George Wald, Nobel Prize winner and activist critic of nuclear power, will talk about the global arms race and "Survival in a Lethal Society: How We Got Where We Are and What Lies Ahead" at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 17 at California State University, San Bernardino. The lecture in the Upper Commons is free and open to the public.

A joint winner of the 1967 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine, Wald has received worldwide recognition for his pioneering work in the field of biochemistry, particularly for his discovery of vitamin A in the retina of the eye.

Since then, Wald's prominence in the scientific community has prompted him to become an advocate of the morally and socially responsible development of technology. He has been lecturing since 1969 on what he calls "survival politics," including such topics as the Cold War and the arms race, nuclear power and weapons, human rights, liberation movements and First World-Third World relations.

Considered a leading authority on the advancements in scientific research that threaten the quality of modern life, Wald has demonstrated his personal commitment by participating in a number of human rights organizations. he has influenced policy as a member of the Advisory Council of Amnesty International USA, the Union of Concerned Scientists and the 1983 UNESCO Colloquium on Racism.

The 80-year-old Wald currently serves as Higgins Professor of Biology Emeritus at Harvard University. He holds a Ph.D. in zoology from Columbia University in his native city of New York.

Wald's talk at Cal State, San Bernardino is sponsored by the Intellectual Life and Visiting Scholars Committee. More information is available at (714) 887-7517.

President Forum Set for Nov. 12

University President Anthony Evans and Associated Students President Steve Hekman will meet with students tomorrow, Thursday, November 12, at 12:00 noon in the Student Union Lounge.

This annual forum is in a discussion format where students may meet with the Presidents informally. Some of the areas that they will be prepared to address are:

- Academic Year Calendar
- Intercollegiate Sports
- Gains in Educational Equity
- Parking Fee Increases
- Proposed Tuition Increase
- Class Size
- Greek Housing (Fraternity Row)
- Questions from the Audience

All students, staff, and faculty are encouraged to attend this annual opportunity to meet the Presidents.

Movie Review

McCarthy, Downey & Gertz In "Less Than Zero"

by Sheila Huggins

"Less Than Zero" starring Andrew McCarthy, Robert Downey Jr., and Jami Gertz does not compare to the critically acclaimed 1985 novel by Bret Easton Ellis titled by the same name.

The book dealt with chronicling a rich, alienated college kid's Christmas vacation in his hometown of Los Angeles with his drug-addicted buddies. It was mostly written in diary form, which detailed party scenes complete with male prostitution, snuff films, and teenage sex slavery. The covert meaning was that the main character had to decide if this kind of life was really worth living.

The $8 million dollar film does injustice to the deeply-filled novel, in that it lacks so much substance. Though dealing with the anomie of youth, the film is also a love story among the three main characters.

Eastern college student Clay returns home to L.A. to find that he has been betrayed by his best friend, a crack addict named Julian, who is seeing Clay's girlfriend, a model named Blair.

McCarthy plays the role of Clay, Downey plays Julian, and Blair is played by Gertz.

Downey does a decent job of portraying a desperate, drug-addict, but the role probably would have worked better with an unknown actor. McCarthy fails to stimulate emotions--probably because he is also too well-known in the movie business as playing the parts for bubble-gum chewing audiences (Pretty in Pink, Mannequin).

Few novels translate well onto the big screen, but this was an especially hard challenge for screenwriter Harley Peyton. He had many choices to take, yet instead, went for the usual, "brat-pack" actors who fill the audience. When they chose McCarthy and Downey to deliver a message that is so complex, the movie lost its credibility and lacks the desperation and substance of the original story.

While judging this 1½ hour movie objectively aside from the best-selling novel, it still lacked the emotion triggering element which was needed to show compassion for the rich Beverly Hills teenagers. It was based more on peer pressure and saying no to drugs than about focusing on the decadent lifestyles that the main characters lived.

It failed to shock and stimulate because it did not go beyond the limits into a more seedy life than was portrayed in this simple movie.

On the whole, it was unsuccessful in trying to chill my nerves, and so on a scale of 10, I give this movie a 4 (afterall, it had a pretty good soundtrack). The novel, however gets a high 10.

1987-88 Cheerleading Squad

by Sheila Huggins

Six members were chosen to represent this campus as the 1987-88 CSUSB Cheerleading Squad. Nine girls tried out in the SUMP on Oct. 22, but only six were selected.

This year's captain is junior Gracie Bobadilla. This will be her third year as a CSUSB cheerleader, but she was also on the junior varsity squads at Eisenhower High School in Rialto.

The co-captain is senior Brenda Weddington who is also from Eisenhower and has had prior experience as a cheerleader for this campus.

The remaining members of the squad are junior Jennifer Bailey from Eisenhower, freshman Amie Clark from Moreno Valley, freshman Carolyn Tacklind from Rim of the World High School, and freshman Liz Bolden from Moreno Valley.

In the past, cheerleaders have been present at all sports, but since they had a late start this year, they will begin cheering for the winter sports. They will also perform half-time routines at both the women's and men's basketball games.

Lady Coyotes Gear Up For Basketball Season

by Ron Carter

CSUSB's best Women's basketball team is gearing up for the 1987-88 season, which is only nine days away.

Coach Jo Anne Bly will be leading the team a third year looking to improve her .677 winning percentage from the previous two years. The Lady Coyotes three year record stands at 35-41, but under Coach Bly the Coyotes are 31-21. Bly has an optimistic outlook on the upcoming season.

"Twenty wins is a real possibility for this team," said an enthusiastic Bly. She has good reasons for the high expectations from the lady hoopsters. The Coyotes will have seven returnees from last year's 14-12 team, including four starters.

Senior center Celeste Gates (5'10") will lead the way. Last year's team M.V.P. averaged 14.9 points and 11.4 rebounds per game while setting numerous single-game high records.

Joining Gates will be the 1984-85 and 1985-86 M.V.P. team Sayori Baldwin. The 5'7" senior guard saw limited playing time last year due to the birth of her child, but is looking forward to a successful last season.

1986-87 Coaches Award, returns after having an incredible rookie year.

Paine averaged 14.9 points and 7.8 rebounds per game and tied a game-high record of 31 points with Gates and Baldwin. She will be playing the center and forward positions, depending on the situation in the games.

Cal State opens on Friday, November 20, in the University of Redlands 6th Annual Women's Basketball Tournament. The Coyotes won the tournament in 1985 and lost to Whittier in the 1986 title game. They face a tough Cal State, Stanislaus, in the opening match at 2 p.m.

Anti-Defamation League Becoming A Menacing Presence Across The U.S.

Gangs of shaven-headed youths wearing neo-Nazi insignia and preaching violence against Blacks, Jews and other minorities, have become a menacing presence in several cities across the United States, according to an Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith report.

Known as "skinheads," the groups have attacked individuals and engaged in vandalism and other criminal acts in cities including Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Detroit, Orlando, Tampa, San Jose and several communities in Orange County, CA.

Burton S. Levinson, ADL's national chairman, said that although the current estimated number of skinhead activists nationwide is small--several hundred--their ranks are growing. He further warned that they have the potential for attracting alienated youth, particularly because of their close association with hard-driving music known as "white power" rock.

In issuing the report at a session of ADL's National Executive Committee meeting Oct. 28 through Oct. 31 at the Westin Hotel, Mr. Levinson noted that the skinheads are regarded as potential recruits by the neo-Nazi movement which has courted them with some success in recent years. He made clear, however, that not all who adopt skinhead styles of haircut and dress are racists or neo-Nazis.

The most active of the skinhead gangs, according to ADL, is based in Chicago and calls itself "Romantic Violence." Its leader, Clark Reid Martell, 27, has been linked to the neo-Nazi movement and has been arrested for painting swastikas on public property in Oak Park, IL, and for violence in connection with a neo-Nazi rally in Ann Arbor, MI. In addition, he has a criminal record dating back to 1979, when he was sentenced to four years in prison for attempting to commit aggravated assault against an Hispanic victim.

The report, entitled "Shaved for Battle-Skinheads Target America's Youth," was prepared by the Fact-Finding Department of ADL's Civil Rights Division. It included these examples of skinhead activity in the past two years:

—The terrorizing of a black woman in San Jose, CA, who was told "niggers pay toll" and threatened with being strung up in a tree when she tried to enter a park;

—The beating of a black man outside a music club in Orlando, FL;

—The distribution of a leaflet in Chicago proclaiming opposition to "the capitalistic and communist scum that are destroying our Aryan race" and a leaflet in Cincinnati declaring as a goal "to smash a healthy, new white man's order!"

—The distribution of neo-Nazi literature and vandalizing of property with spray paint in Orange County, CA.

—The appearance in Gainesville, FL area bars of a skinhead band, "Jehovah's Sicknesses," which hurls Nazi salutes and shouts racial insults.

The league said American skinhead gangs promote an ideology similar to that of their counterparts in Britain, where the movement originated in the early 1970's—a mixture of xenophobia, racial and religious bigotry with varying degrees of linkage to neo-Nazis and other hate groups.

The ADL report placed skinheads in attendance at recent conferences of the Aryan Nations, an organization described by ADL as a militant Nazi-like group, headquartered in Hayden Lake, ID. They have also participated, the League said, in an American Nazi Party march in Chicago as well as in weekend conferences in Michigan for hate group activists, hosted by Robert Miles, former head of that state's Ku Klux Klan who is under indictment for plotting a violent overthrow of the U.S. government.

The ADL report concluded that the skinheads, who have engaged in criminal activity in virtually all the cities where they are active, require attention and concern by the general community as well as law enforcement agencies.

"No less serious than the prospect of violence," according to ADL, "is the possible recruitment of skinheads into the neo-Nazi movement," whose membership has steadily declined over the past decade.

ADL said that because the skinheads are a contemporary youth cult associated with rock music, they offer the neo-Nazis "something they have rarely enjoyed in the United States: a base of support from which to recruit."

Alpha Gamma Omega and Jack in the Box Sponsor Statewide Greek Ski Race

The Alpha Gamma Omega-Jack in the Box All Greek Ski Race is going statewide. The event originated at San Diego State University where Alpha Gamma Omega's Epsilon chapter created the event as a means to become more involved with the Greeks there. Alpha Gamma Omega is a Christian fraternity and is not recognized at SDSU because of a clause in its constitution which SDSU administrators feel is discriminatory. The event is in its third year and this is the first time A.G.O. is expanding it to include Greeks from other universities.

The event will take place on Monday and Tuesday January 4 and 5, 1988 at Mammoth Mtn. CA. Ski Race coordinator John "Dingo" Howard explains the reason for the dates and location. "It's the ideal time for college students to go skiing because high schoolers are back in school and slopes are very uncrowded. It's also easier to get lodging at this time since it is considered nonholiday. We chose Mammoth because of its central location in the state and Mammoth puts on a very high quality, efficient race. Mammoth will set the course and do the time keeping for us."

Monday is a Dual Slalom with racers going head to head and Tuesday is a single course Giant Slalom. Individual medals will be awarded for each day and team trophies, including a four foot championship perpetual trophy, will be awarded for the two days combined. Teams consist of four racers and each house can enter as many teams as they wish. It's open to all fraternities, sororities and little sister programs and one can be any status to enter: active, inactive, alumni or pledge. There are two divisions--men and women, and fraternity little sister teams will be competing against the sorority teams. There are no divisions by abilities and all abilities are welcome as expressed by Howard.

"In the past we've had all abilities," Howard said. "For Bret Stinson of Alpha Gamma Omega it was his third day on skis but for Bill Locken of Lambda Chi Alpha it was a successful two days as he beat the forerunner's time. As a matter of fact Locken was recruited by SDSU's snowski team after his performance in the Greek Ski Race and became SDSU's number two seed." Most houses will put their four best skiers on a team and then enter one or two others who participate on more of a recreational level.

The entry fee is $15 per person and included in that price is two days of ski racing, a T-shirt, race program, take home racing bib, a photograph of themselves racing, viewing of themselves on videotape racing and viewing of a multi-media presentation which will be shown Monday night of the two day event. Racers get two runs down the course each day. The entry fee does not include lodging, transportation or lift tickets.

Howard is expecting 200-400 competitors and feels the event will expand quickly in its first three to five years statewide. In 1986, its first year, 60 racers from 8 houses took part. The second year entries doubled to 120 and 15 respectively but the event was cancelled due to a lack of snow. Howard, who is the originator of the event, said this year they will promote it on the campuses which have an A.G.O. chapter and hopefully word will spread to other universities from there in the next three years. Those universities with A.G.O. chapters this year include California State University at Fresno, University of California at Berkeley, California State University at Long Beach and San Diego State University.

For race entry forms and further information Greeks can either contact the A.G.O. house on their campus or call John "Dingo" Howard at (619) 583-9525.

For further information or questions on the event feel free to call John "Dingo" Howard at (619) 583-9525.

Horse Racing Arrives at Orange Show

Horse racing arrives in San Bernardino when satellite wagering opens Nov. 18 at the National Orange Showgrounds.

Race wagering in the Inland Empire is starting about six weeks earlier than the Jan. 1 operational date the Showgrounds general manager had anticipated when Gov. Deukmejian signed a bill expanding parimutuel wagering to off-track sites in the Southland.

The earlier opening, general manager Joe Brosmer said, enables wagering on the full Hollywood Park fall season, which also begins Nov. 18. In addition, Hollywood Park general manager Don Robbins had urged the earlier date because the track will hold the Breeders' Cup Nov. 21.

"The Breeders' Cup will help draw interest in satellite wagering on the Showgrounds very quickly," Brosmer said. "But not only did we want to take advantage of that, we also realized with the facility already existing, why not get with it?"

Wagering will be held in the Dome, a 22,000-square-foot building on Mill Street, off I-215. Inside the Dome, which formerly housed the flower show attraction of the annual National Orange Show, will be 28 betting windows and large television screens to accommodate as many as 1500 patrons. Food and beverage concessions also are planned.

(The flower show will be moved into another grounds building for the 73rd National Orange Show, scheduled for April 28-May 8.)

"The Dome will be an ideal facility, easy to convert into an attractive off-track showplace," Brosmer said.

However, Brosmer said, would demands require a larger venue, the Showgrounds "is not adverse to building another structure."

Pat Morgan, director of operations at the national Orange Show, will manage the satellite facility.

Although the Dome will not be online until the following day, the facility will be unveiled to media and area dignitaries Nov. 17 during ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

San Bernardino will share the opening day limelight with the Del Mar and Ventura fairgrounds, which also were granted a Nov. 18 start by the California Horse Racing Board. Satellite wagering is scheduled to begin Jan. 1 in Bakersfield, Santa Barbara and Santa Maria; fairgrounds in Lake Perris and Indio will join the Southern California network later.

Besides Hollywood Park, patrons will be able to view races virtually year-round from Santa Anita, Del Mar, Los Alamitos and Fairplex in Pomona. Off-track bets will figure into the host track's wagering pool, and payoffs will be the same as those at the track.

The National Orange Showgrounds, as the other satellite facilities, will receive 2 percent of the handle along with revenues from admissions, concessions and parking. Host tracks receive 3.5 percent of the gross handle and are responsible for hiring parimutuel clerks and setting up wagering equipment.

Additional information is available by calling the Showgrounds at 885-0201.

The Leaders Learn A Few Lessons

by Patrice Bolding
Chronicle Staff-Writer

With workshops ranging from "Public Speaking" to "Successful Meetings" and "Marketing," among others, the Leadership Conference held at CSUSB this weekend was a fulfilled learning experience for the over 50 students who attended.

Although the conference was directed toward campus and club leaders—11 of which were San Bernardino Valley College ASB representatives—it also attracted a few "students at large."

"There are so many people who can benefit from this," said Gary Almond, a returning CSUSB Marketing major.

Gary, who took a two-year hiatus, saw the conference as a way to hone his leadership skills, which he may use at a future time.

The other attending students had similar goals, but planned on implementing the skills and ideas learned into both their newly formed groups, and those already with a strong background.

After a welcoming speech by President Evans, and a "pass-the-energy" and "lap-sit" ice breaker—ad-libbed by Drama President David Pavao—the conference broke up into two one-hour workshops—one on "Public Speaking," led by Jim Kennedy, managing partner of San Bernardino's Kennedy and Kennedy CPA Firm, on "Mission Clarification," directed by Catholic Campus Minister, Steve Valenzuela.

Valenzuela had his group of 13 write an acceptance speech for a Club of The Year award, stating what their club's priorities were, and what their "vision," or mission was.

In the little discussion that followed, Felicia Reyes and Marc Eisenhart, both presidents of newly formed clubs—Los Amigos and the French Club respectively—were able to exchange some ideas on how to actualize their visions.

For the second hour, students had a choice of attending a workshop on "Fundraising," "Successful Meetings," or, again, "Public Speaking."

The attendees learned promotional ideas for their clubs in the "Fundraising" workshop, and three different ways of preparing and running group meetings, with a few tips on Robert's Rules, from the "Successful Meetings" workshop, conducted by professor of Information Management and Business Administration at CSUSB, Tapie Rohm.

Rohm, dressed in a grey tweed jacket, grey slacks and hiking boots, stressed that one individual can make a difference. That one individual, the board chairman in this case, had the ability to run a well organized meeting, or one that accomplished nothing—which many of the 26 students felt occurred at their meetings.

"Public Speaking," emphasized

knowing your audience, knowing the material you're using, organizing, and after mastering all the above, using your talents. Most public speaking classes instruct students to begin speeches with a joke. But for those who don't feel comfortable with this introduction, Kennedy advises them to try something else, something that fits their personality.

The third, and final hour of the conference consisted of workshops covering "Marketing" and "Team Building."

"Marketing Your Club" was the theme Linda Mitchell, Division Manager from Gate City Beverage Co., used in her discussion with the thirteen attentive students. Her talk centered on recruiting new members, and retaining the ones already involved.

Students sitting in on the "Team Building" workshop were surprised by Jack Dexter's unexpected twist of events—forcing the students to play roles of followers and outsiders, rather than leaders, through a few inventive games. The "leaders," who were accustomed to "choosing" the team members, were suddenly at the mercy of those others who were now deciding whether they wanted the leaders on their team or not. They were able to see how it felt to be excluded, and how this stifles the desire to contribute to the group.

The conference ended with an informal luncheon, and with a final message by keynote speaker Ray Eberle, Director at Cal Poly Pomona.

He encouraged the students to take their leadership seriously, but also, to enjoy themselves.

"Being a student leader is not the Middle East," he said. "You're doing this to learn."

He also encouraged the student leaders to convince their constituents to get involved with other people, to expand their thinking and experience.

"They're concerned with earning big bucks," he said to the captive audience, "but there's more to life than a job on Wall Street or working with a big firm."

As for the leaders, Eberle stressed that successful leadership involves caring.

"If the group thinks you care about them, you can do really well."

So what did the conference goers think?

"I can't wait until the Monday meeting!" said Anissa Stark, representative for the Student Union and member of Alpha Phi.

"I have so many ideas—so many lights went on—I can't wait!" she said excitedly.

"We got a lot of good ideas," said Evin Ashworth, president of the Alpha Phi sorority. "At the 'Fundraising' we got good promotional ideas—where we can put up things, and have two things going on at one time."

Ashworth, who also attended the "Successful Meeting"

Workshop, felt the procedure clarification was an important topic.

"There is a lot of technical stuff that isn't stated in the rules that come down through the organization," she said.

Not surprising, the "Team Building" workshop was the overall favorite for those who attended.

"The 'Team Building' was a gas!" said SBVC ASB senator Rafael Greene. "He psyched us up!"

"I thought I did something crafty, and he did something craftier!" he said, impressed.

"I learned how people felt when they are manipulated," he continued after some thought.

"I do that at meetings sometimes."

While the "Team Building" workshop was perhaps the most entertaining, the students benefitted from all the workshops, especially "Public Speaking."

"I enjoyed the Public Speaking," said Manuela Bode, also a SBVC ASB representative, "because I have to do a presentation Tuesday, and he explained how to do a good one," she smiled.

"I was really pleased," said a tired, but happy Tami Bakewell, the Student Life coordinator who organized the event. "We did what people asked us to do," she said, reading through the evaluation sheets.

In the future, two "mini" conferences are planned, one in the upcoming winter quarter, and another in Spring, said Bakewell. A major event will follow next Fall.

The Marriage of Bette and Boo

Fall Production Begins at CSUSB

The contemporary award-winning comedy The Marriage of Bette and Boo will usher in the theatre season at Cal State, San Bernardino Nov. 12-14 and 18-21.

A 1985 Obie winner, the play has been called a "furiously funny yet devastatingly sad family album." Playwright Christopher Durang takes a "somewhat irreverent view of family, Church and marriage," said Dr. William Slout, director of the Cal State production.

The portrayal of these social institutions are a product of the childhood experiences of Durang, who is best known for his play Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All For You.

In the first scene, Bette and Boo are at the church preparing for their wedding ceremony. Boo is 32 and "mighty old to be getting married" according to his father, Slout said. Bette is anxious to get married and have children. The play "becomes a series of episodes which are not in chronological order because the memory doesn't work that way," he added.

Tickets are $6 for general admission, $3 for students and senior citizens. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. for each performance in the university theatre. Information on student discounts is available at (714) 887-7452.

Movie Review

Cher & Liam Neeson Star in "Suspect"

Stars: Cher, Dennis Quaid

is very serious in the courtroom but shows a lighter side when she leaves it.

by Shannon Cowden

Kathleen Riley (Cher) is an unsatisfied public defender who is assigned to the case of a street derelict (Liam Neeson) who has been accused of murder.

Eddie Sangar, played by Dennis Quaid, is a member of the jury who happens to notice some clues that Riley has missed.

Because no lawyer-juror contact is permitted in the court of law, Sangar must relay his information on to Riley without being seen. A secret working relationship evolves between the two, but has no room to develop to intimacy.

Cher does a great job at giving

Dennis Quaid's character depicts the "back side" of Washington, where people do anything or sleep with anyone, to get what they want. His character is not all bad, though, and his self-centered charm grows on you, just as it does Cher.

If there is any problem with the movie, it can be found with the character of the judge. He obviously is obstructing justice with some of the rulings he makes, which detracts from the movie's credibility.

OVERALL: On a scale of ten, "Suspect" gets a 9! The movie is very suspenseful and never has a dull moment. The acting is good, and if the audience can overlook some of the technical flaws, the movie will be great.

Delta Sigma Phi Elections & Events

Congratulations to the recently elected pledge class officers who, after thoroughly presenting themselves and their merits, prevailed through popular election by their pledge class peers. The new officers of the pledge class are: Joe Traylor, President; Rod Babcock, Vice President; Mike Crow, Secretary; and Richard Long, Treasurer.

These fine young men will be responsible for the leadership and direction of the pledge class and many of their independent activities such as Active Night and The Chapter Fundraiser. Moreover, the pledge officers, with the aid of the active officers, will provide both inspiration and motivation to the brothers of Delta Sigma Phi.

In addition to the Pledge Elections and other recently held Delta Sig activities, such as the Pub Party which was held on Tuesday, November 10 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the campus pub, there are a wide array of upcoming Delta Sig events scheduled for the month of November such as the Nov. 12 Big Bro./Little Bro. Night, The Nov. 15 A-M N-Z Football Game at the playing field, The Nov. 21-22 Las Vegas Road Trip, and The Nov. 25-28 Delta Sigma Phi National Convention held at Northern Arizona University.

These are just some of the highlights of the many Delta Sig. events going on for the month of November and a quick reminder that every weekend there is always something exciting going on at the Delta Sig House—so keep posted folks and look for Delta Sig at a party near you.

ADPi Introduces Class Officers and Plans Events

ADPi's fundraising effort for the 87-88 school year got off to a fine start Wednesday, November 4 with a bake sale that was held in the Student Union. Thank you to all of the students, faculty and staff who made it a sell-out success! Future fundraisers include our November 11 bowl-a-thon (have you sponsored a Pi yet?!) and aerobic-a-thon to be done jointly with the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon. Speaking of fundraisers, congratulations are extended to the men of Sigma Chi, for the long arduous hours of teeter-tottering, spent raising money for the Cleo Wallace Children's Center.

ADPi would like to formally introduce it's pledge class officers;

Famous Alumni Tell Why They Chose Sigma Chi

When a brother graduates from college he is not disassociated from the fraternity, for he is a Sigma Chi for life.

Tom Selleck, Southern California '67:

"I made some very long-lasting friendships with Sigs in college—a lot of them have lasted to this day, and are a valuable thing to me. The Fraternity has meant an awful lot to me, and the Ritual was very, very meaningful to me."

Jim Palmer, Arizona State '67:

"You have to be honest, have integrity, be able to cooperate and get along with other people. Sigma Chi is a great place to learn that, and that's why it's a great thing to join this fraternity."

Mike Ditka, Pitt '61:

"What you do in life by yourself doesn't mean as much as what you accomplish with a group of people. Sigma Chi was one of the greatest things that happened to me. I really appreciate what it has done for me in my lifetime and I hope I can continue to give something back."

Merlin Olsen, Utah State '62:

"Sigma Chi was a learning experience for me in personal growth, in finding out more about myself, in shaping my life more effectively, and in directing my energies more efficiently. All those things were heavily influenced by my Sigma Chi experience. There is no question that that has had a tremendous impact on my career, professionally and on my life."

Barry M. Goldwater, Arizona '32:

"Wherever in this world that you go, being a Sigma Chi is a great honor. When you meet a Sig, there is an immediate rapport. I don't think I ever enjoyed an association in my life as much as I've enjoyed Sigma Chi."

In the United States only 25 universities have more alumni than does Sigma Chi. Whether prominent or not, alumni are a vital part of any fraternal organization. In Sigma Chi we take pride in the magnitude and quality of our alumni.

Sigma Chi & Tau Kappa Epsilon Doing Great Work

Sigma Chi and Tau Kappa Epsilon are two of the strongest and largest international fraternities in the world. We at CSUSB are privileged to have two such fine fraternities.

Both fraternities did a fantastic job during fall rush. Tau Kappa Epsilon initiated 17 pledges and Sigma Chi initiated 22 pledges. Everyone should congratulate these guys for doing a great job of organizing themselves and getting some of the best men on campus.

Sigma Chi is one of the larger fraternities, on campus, with 41 active members. Even though the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity have only been on campus for a short time they have 18 active members. Each of the houses also picked some of the nicest and best looking women on campus to be their little sisters.

It will be exciting to come back in 20 years and see how much the campus and the greek society has grown. I am sure the Sigma Chi and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternities will be stronger than ever. Keep up the good work guys.

Delta Sigs and Alpha Phi's Collaborate at Halloween Social

What do you get when you cross a walking, talking mop with two transvestites, various surgeons and athletes, and assorted other costumed Greeks? If you guessed the Delta Sigma Phi and Alpha Phi Halloween Social you were right. What began as a calm rainy evening soon developed into much more as we, the guests of Stonebury Mansion, were witness to a murder. It was quite obvious that a "whodunnit" mystery was close at hand.

It seems that the great Mr. Stonebury (well portrayed by Jeff Lafrenz) has been running quite an interesting household, laced with steamy affairs and jealousy. Now Mrs. Stonebury is dead, and as you can well imagine there is quite a long list of suspects. Could it be Mrs. McMartin, the nanny; or Dolly Madison, the cook? It might be the groundskeeper, or the maid, or the secretary, or even the butler. They all had motives and they had opportunity.

The inspector (portrayed by Rob Shaughnessy) divided the guests into groups and all set out onto the rainy streets of San Bernardino to find the clues which would ultimately lead to the murderer.

After about an hour of relentless clue seeking, all groups returned to the scene of the crime, each with their own ideas about who dunnit. Many were convinced it was the seedy bodyguard (Paul Granillo), while others were sure it was suicide. As the suspects were further interrogated, it became obvious that there was only one sure choice. The true murderer was becoming uneasy as her fellow suspects were eliminated. Finally she blew her cover in a big way by pulling out a gun and shooting at everyone in sight. It was Dolly Madison, the loyal family cook. Of course!

Many thanks to all who helped set up for the social; and special thanks to JMI for the use of her house for the evening. All guests had a great time.

"Bill The Fox"

by Jan Bruggeman

Mr. Fox Rocks In The Pub

by Chris Duva

On Tuesday, November 3, renowned beer drinker Bill the Fox performed in front of a packed house at the Cal State pub, ironically just three days after the close of National Red Ribbon Week.

Mr. Fox has appeared on the Tonight Show and MTV and is best known for his ability to drink a 12 ounce mug of beer in the blink of an eye. For an hour and a half Mr. Fox entertained the audience by drinking mug after mug of Anheuser-Busch's L.A. beer. Not only did Bill the Fox drink beer in the usual upright manner, but he also drank beer while standing on his head and drank several beers in rapid succession. Mr. Fox also had a chug-a-lug contest with several students, in which of course, he was the winner. In between slamming beers Mr. Fox sang vulgar little jingles that made reference to bestiality, group sex, homosexuality, and other sexual practices illegal in some states.

It appeared that the audience found Bill the Fox to be extremely entertaining. Laughter erupted from the audience after virtually every one of his crude jokes. His mixture of beer drinking and obnoxious humor was widely enjoyed by all.

Ribeau's Plan Aims For More 'Successful Students' New Outlook Includes Undergraduate Needs

by Dana Daughtrey

Improving student retention is the major objective of Dr. Sidney Ribeau who recently became the Dean of Undergraduate Studies.

"What I plan to do is help students be more successful at this university. We're bringing many new students in, but we want to ensure that the majority of students graduate," Ribeau explained.

internships, the application process, contacts and summer jobs," he said.

When asked why he became a dean at CSUSB he replied, "I think I was at the point in my career where I was ready to assume a position of more responsibility for determining policy."

Originally from Detroit, Michigan, Ribeau received his doctorate from the University of However, Ribeau is not planning to make any drastic changes in the General Education program. The entire General Education program was reviewed last year and Ribeau feels satisfied with the changes that were made.

"I was on the General Education task force at Cal State, Los Angeles, and it seems like the committee here established the program structure to be sensitive to basic skills courses like writing

By finding where students are having problems--academically, financially or otherwise--we can refer them to the right support service.

"We want to help students maintain their enrollment and be successful," said Ribeau.

As the Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Ribeau is responsible for many programs. Overseeing the General Education Program, Academic Advisement Center, Counseling Center, Educational Opportunity Program and the Student Assistance in Learning programs are part of his duties. He is also responsible for students with special majors.

"A lot of work is administrative and meetings, but starting winter quarter I plan to meet with different groups of students," he said. "I had contact with some students already at a social mixer for new Black students."

Ribeau said he wants to meet with students more often.

"I think it's important for students to be informed about

Illinois with specialization in intercultural communication and media criticism. Since 1976 he was a professor of communication at Cal State, Los Angeles. While at CSULA, Ribeau served as Associate Chair of the Communication department and then the Chair of the Pan-African Studies department.

Ribeau plans to teach a course on the rhetoric of Martin Luther King Jr., next year.

As an administrator, he thinks he has more input in the entire operation of the university.

"I feel it's important that if you have ideas and something to and speech--courses that show an ethnic perspective and issues pertaining to women in a fair manner," he said.

The categories and structures are already set. He concluded that it's just a matter of finding which department is appropriate to offer a broad presentation for each category.

When asked how he likes CSUSB, Ribeau said, "So far it's been a very good experience. The students have been nice and the people seem to be real bright, confident and easy to work with."

He complimented Bob Detweiler, vice president of academic affairs; Jerrold Pritchard, associate vice president academic programs; and Amer El-Ahraf, associate vice president academic resources as being tremendously supportive.

"That makes my transition from Cal State, Los Angeles, to CSUSB a lot easier."

Watch 'Days of Our Lives'

Students 'Extras' at Greek Wedding

by Sheila Huggins

Soap opera stars? Maybe not stars, but it was a start for 30 CSUSB theatre art majors who went to Los Angeles to participate in a scene for the daytime soap opera, "Days of Our Lives."

NBC studios needed extras--background people--for an episode that included a wedding scene at a Greek Orthodox Church. They wanted a lot of people to make it look like a big wedding with hundreds of guests. NBC called campuses in the area to invite clubs and organizations to participate.

Robbi Warshaw, treasurer of the Players of the Pear Garden drama club, organized the club to participate.

NBC offered $4 per person up to 30 students. Warshaw felt it would be a good way to raise money for the club and be a good experience for club members.

Between 600 and 700 people arrived on October 15 to be extras in the "Days of Our Lives" episode, according to Dadid Pavab, president of the Players of the Pear Garden.

"We waited in line for 2 1/2 hours until we finally got in," he said.

Pavab said the scene was taped in a "seedy" part of Los Angeles in a beautiful Greek Orthodox Church. The ceremony was for the characters who play Justin and Things are changing at the Career and Placement Center, for starters they are now known as the Career Development Center.

A change in the philosophy of the program brought about the name change. The program changed its aim from primarily senior students and graduates to all levels of students.

The center has a new emphasis on career development while also retaining its job placement activities of resume writing, interview skills and on-campus job interviews.

In the past the counselors found that the earlier in a student's academic career they got involved the more they could help, according to Ed Schneiderhan one of the three counselors at the center.

S.A.I.L. Assists In G.E. Required's

by Caryn Schobert

Student Assistance in Learning (S.A.I.L.) adjunct courses provide students with academic assistance in taking General Education courses.

Jean Peacock, director of the S.A.I.L. program, states that adjunct courses are for those students who strive for more than a "C" in a General Education course which is outside their area of experience.

Enrollees also include students who would like assistance in researching their term papers, studying their text or taking better notes for that course.

Classes meet twice weekly and zero in on what is happening for each specific week.

Students enroll in adjunct courses voluntarily as a result of advisement, counseling, word of mouth, or after an adjunct instructor has visited the class and explained the program.

Students receive two units of

The Career Development Center can help undeclared majors by helping them understand their needs, which should be considered before a career or major is considered.

A special workshop is being held November 18 from 3 to 4:30 p.m. on "Career Decision Making." It is a values oriented self-exploration workshop to help students decide what will be important to them in their work environment. By clarifying their values students will be important to them in their work environment.

By Clarifying their values students will be more aware of what kind of job will be fulfilling.

non-baccalaureate credit along with a letter grade for an adjunct course. There is no homework and no additional text. Attendance constitutes the largest part of the grade.

These courses are subject specific and there is usually one adjunct section for each individual instructor.

Recent data clearly indicates the absence of low grades for the adjunct students as well as higher percentages of A's and B's, according to Peacock.

The following adjunct classes will be offered during Winter quarter: Political Science 203, Psychology 100, Communication 120, Philosophy 190, and English 311.

During Spring quarter adjunct classes will be offered in: Political Science 203, Philosophy 190, English 170, and English 311.

Students can enroll in adjunct courses at no additional cost. They are listed in the class schedule. For more information call 877-7673.

Because they were extras, they didn't get a chance to show their acting abilities.

"The only direction we got from the director was to turn around when the bride came through the door," Pavab said, "It was exciting, but it was totally different from the work we are used to."

Since more people participated than NBC planned for, they didn't serve lunch and the day lasted longer than expected.

NBC will air the wedding episode of "Days of Our Lives" in two parts on Nov. 13 and 16 from noon to 1 p.m.

"It was a long day, but it was well worth the time, trouble and planning," Warshaw concluded.

Aids Virus Found Predominate In Addicts

by Jane Cole

Would you elect a heroin addict to your city government? That is exactly what the people of Signal Hill did. Associate Professor of Public Administration is a former mayor and councilman of Signal Hill and also an admitted heroin addict.

After his own eight year battle with drug addiction, David Bellis became interested in helping other users overcome their heroin addiction. Bellis has been clean now for 17 years. Over the years Bellis has worked with over 10,000 addicts and is responsible for setting up 17 narcotic addict programs right here in Ontario. With the onset of the AIDS scare Bellis became interested in the effect this disease was having on the street prostitute-heroin addict population.

Professor Bellis chose this particular group to study because they are subject to a "double whammy," as Bellis describes. These women could contract the virus from infected needles and/or from their customers if there is blood to blood contact.

Bellis explained that street prostitutes are the most likely type of prostitute to also have a heroin addiction. Because of their compulsive physiological addiction to narcotics they are not taking the precautions which would prevent transmission of the AIDS virus. Bellis notes that 17% of all reported full-blown AIDS cases nation-wide are among intravenous drug users. Of the 36 women Bellis interviewed, each was engaging in street prostitution to finance their heroin habits, which cost between $200-$400 a day.

Bellis interviewed these addict-prostitutes on street corners, in motels, and at local truck stops. Prostitutes line up customers using CB radios and are often involved in many crimes other than prostitution.

The goal of the interviews was to determine exactly how much paraphernalia-sharing is actually occurring, whether or not these women are taking any precautions to prevent AIDS transmission, and to determine other attitudes and behavior in the group which might lead to more effective AIDS prevention/education programs.

According to Bellis the most likely route of AIDS transmission among these women is through the sharing of infected narcotic-injecting paraphernalia. The possession of such needles and syringes is currently a felony in the state of California unless prescribed by a physician. Since the supply of "outfits" is so scarce, addicts are always looking for a sharper needle and often borrow someone else's.

Bellis adds that in addition to sharing their "outfits" with others, over 90% of them do not require their customers to wear a condom. All of Bellis' subjects expressed fear of contracting the deadly virus, but due to their physical dependence on heroin they are unable to alter the prostitution and drug using cycle.

A typical comment among the group, said Bellis, was "I hook to shoot dope and shooting dope don't hook." In other words, these women are caught up in a vicious cycle of having to prostitute to afford heroin, and they must dull their senses with narcotics to engage in prostitution. The prostitutes averaged 20 customers a day. Ninety percent of them said most of their customers brought up the subject of AIDS in one way or another.

These women suggested that the government provide free treatment for heroin addicts, especially inpatient detoxification or methadone maintenance therapy. All of the inpatient narcotic addiction treatment programs in Southern California today are private, fee-for-service operations that can cost $20,000. These women lack such money, and even if they had it they would buy heroin with it. Bellis explains that "where the more you have, the more you use, and the more you use, the less you have." The addict is thus, a person in total need of dope.

Over half of the subjects Bellis interviewed, said they would continue shooting heroin and prostituting even if they were diagnosed as having AIDS.

The data Bellis has collected will be published and turned over to the Federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Schooling Children Infected with AIDS

Should children infected the AIDS virus be permitted to attend public school?

The answer to that emotionally-charged question comes as a resounding yes from Dr. Marsha Liss, a professor of psychology at Cal State, San Bernardino who has been researching the subject of pediatric AIDS for nearly two years.

districts in San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties to learn more about their existing child health care policies. She discovered that the schools with the most progressive policies were the most willing to enroll children with AIDS.

That revelation has led Liss to advocate the development of policies dealing with "new diseases and health concerns as they arise in advance of media attention and public fear." Her insights were presented to an August meeting of the American Psychological Association in New York and prompted an interview with Connie Chung on NBC-TV local and national news. Her findings also will be included in the opening chapter of the book Children and AIDS, which is scheduled for publication next fall.

One of several contributors to the book, Liss points out that school officials must take three steps to meet the educational needs of children with AIDS. The first step is to be proactive in the development of health care policies. Another measure is to allow medical authorities, not the courts, to set the policies in order to maintain the anonymity of the children by keeping their names out of court records.

The most important step is to educate teachers, school officials, and the general public about the facts an AIDS, she said. The results of her survey have led Liss to conclude "that we can do something to change people's attitudes. We can make people more accepting."

Liss also has found that in cases involving other infectious diseases, such as hepatitis and herpes, the courts have consistently mandated that children infected with such diseases must be allowed back in school. "It is clear now that kids belong in school," she stated.

The Cal State psychology professor's interest in children's rights and mental illness in general motivated her to earn a degree from UCLA's school of law earlier this year. She has applied her newly acquired knowledge of health care law to her research and written work on pediatric AIDS.

Other topics covered in the forthcoming book Children and AIDS include ethics and confidentiality, hemophiliacs, and demographics and concerns of families who have children with AIDS, and medical aspects of AIDS.

Exam Anxiety?

As fall quarter has moved beyond its midway point, mid-term exams have arrived once again. For some Cal-State students, mid-term number one was two or three weeks ago and number two will be coming up shortly. And, of course, once mid-term exams are behind us, we have to focus on final exams. Taking these exams are one thing, but focusing on them is the real problem for some students.

When most college students think about mid-term exams they shudder. The thought of exams stirs up emotions such as anger, depression, fear, futility and hostility. Although we go through these emotions--and many others--we still survive the exams. The question is how do we survive this stressful time and what do we do in order to get through it without too many scars?

Recently, a number of CSUSB students were surveyed to find out about their experiences with mid-term exams and stress. First, students were asked if they suffer from stress during the time of mid-terms and to describe the emotions they undergo at mid-term time. Second, the survey questioned if the stress gets the person into conflicts with others around them. Last, each person was asked what they did to cope with the stress.

The answers to each question varied quite a bit. For the first question, those interviewed stated answers that included feelings of anger, anxiousness, apprehension, depression, fear, forgetfulness, frustration, headaches, nervousness, panic, and tensing-up.

A few students said that the nervousness they feel causes them to "run all of their thoughts together and forget (or block out) a great deal" of what they either learned or already knew about the subject of the exam. Other students stated that the thought of mid-terms brings the fear of "walls closing in."

Dave Courtaway described his fear in a different way. "The emotions run high and the fear of studying the wrong material is ever-present," he said.

Randy Mantel said he causes his own stress.

"I procrastinate ridiculously and force myself to cram (for exams)," Mantel stated. "I create my own pressure and tension, and force myself to study."

Mehkari-Abdul Kahmen said that his fear causes him to lose a sense-of-reality.

"I don't have any control of my emotions and don't have any realistic approach to cope with the situation I am in," Kahman stated.

Stephanie Chblinik said that because she has "a short temper" she gets into conflicts with parents when she goes home each weekend. Patricia Blache stated that she ventilates her frustrations with her 15-year-old son, while Beverly Lundgen said that she usually gets upset with herself.

Other students stated that they try to avoid contact with people during mid-term time in order to escape possible conflicts. Sean Gallagher said he doesn't get into conflicts with others because he keeps his study problems separated from other issues.

The most diversified array of answers came from the final question of the survey--mechanisms used to cope with mid-term stress. The answers ranged from undertaking strenuous physical activities such as sports to relaxed settings such as playing guitar, doing needlepoint or going to a movie.

Steve Wildinon was one student who said that participating in sports eases stress.

"I like to play sports as an escape. I'll hit the tennis or racquetball courts just to get away for a while, or I'll spend a couple of hours in a spa to relax," Wildinon said.

Keely Maysey stated that she isolates herself and "prepares for what is ahead. Being well-prepared, I feel more confident (about my chances)."
